"Education makes the man"
- Cawthorne

Culminating the final four years of our formal education, we, as graduating Seniors, can now recall what have been the most informative years of our lives. The education we have gained, the fun we have enjoyed, and the friendships we have made will remain a part of us forever.

In September, 1961, we entered Dover High School as perplexed Freshmen, anxious to learn and to accomplish. As Sophomores, we became involved in various activities: service organizations, drama groups, athletics. It was these activities that allowed us to further develop our capabilities.

In our Junior year, we, the class of 1965, chose our preferred curriculum. Each of us, in the completion of this third year, had determined his future, and each would continue to strive to fulfill the requirements of his goal. Our Senior year contained a great deal of enjoyment, leaving memories we will never forget. We represented the image of the "Almighty Seniors," reigning over the less learned, less cultivated underclassmen. Yet, with all these precious moments we never forgot our prime objective, our highest aspiration in high school: to receive the education that was to serve as our foundation when entering the world of adults.

With our graduation from Dover High School, and the acquiescence of our diplomas, our formal education came to a close. For us it was a passport to enter a highly competitive world. Regardless of its immediate meaning, the knowledge we have gained here will never leave us, but instead, will guide us through life.
